Abstract

This report analyzes COVID-19 impacts on criminal justice data. Specifically, it focuses on the differences amongst adult and juvenile arrests, adult sentencing and juvenile dispositions, adult and juvenile carceral admissions between 2020 and previous years. This type of analysis can help support state and federal policymakers in determining potential next steps in addressing the pandemic's impact on the criminal justice system – both in the short-term and in the long-term. This report will also help future researchers better understand the anomalies and a more accurate assessment of the pandemic that occurred in the criminal justice datasets during the years impacted.

The Washington Statistical Analysis Center (SAC) applied for and received the 2021 State Justice Statistics Grant from Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS). Among other projects, the SAC sought the grant to evaluate the impact of COVID-19 on criminal justice data.

Main conclusions from this report:

1. Overall, counts of arrests in Washington State, regardless of category, showed mixed findings with increased from 2017 to 2018 and then 2019 to 2020; but decreased from 2018 to 2019 and then again 2020 to 2021. From 2020 to 2021, there was an overall 3% decrease in arrests in Washington State.
2. For adult arrests in Washington State, from 2019 to 2020 and then 2020 to 2021, there was an overall 17.8% and 13.9% decrease, respectively. For juvenile arrests, from 2019 to 2020 and then 2020 to 2021, there was an overall 39.1% and 33.2% decrease, respectively.
3. Superior court filings decreased from 16.2% in 2018-2019, to 21.4% in 2019-2020, to 15.7% in 2020-2021. Additionally, felony jail sentences decreased throughout the years, from 2017 to 2021. Furthermore, while the overall average prison sentences also saw a decrease from 2017 to 2021, in 2019 to 2020, murder, sex crimes, robbery, and drug crimes saw rises.
4. Juvenile dispositions showed substantial decreases from 2019 to 2020 and from 2020 to 2021 by 7.3% and by 28.8%, respectively.
5. Adult prison admissions saw a decline in all admissions (new, re-admit, and other) . from 2019 to 2021
6. From 2019 to 2020, DOC juvenile admissions and new admissions increased by 126.9% and 11.7%, respectively. 2020 to 2021 presented with decreases in all juvenile admissions.

Background

The COVID-19 pandemic unprecedentedly impacted national, state, and local government operations across public policy (Ashby, 2020). The American criminal justice system also saw significant impact. Every point of the system has been impacted by COVID-19, and as such, COVID-19 pandemic led to abrupt changes in the operations of the adult criminal justice system.

The criminal justice system's response to COVID-19

In response to COVID-19, various states reduced involvement with the criminal justice system within their typical decision points (i.e., with law enforcement or community supervision officers, in jails, in courts, and/or in prisons). At every level, including civil and criminal, courts postponed or canceled proceedings and transitioned previously in-person required proceedings to remote means. Carceral systems took steps to limit the intake and transfer of individuals and release individuals who may otherwise be held in custody. This included those who were at risk, such as elderly and medically vulnerable people. State agencies also administered supervision conditions through various digital (remote) tools (i.e., phones, video conferencing). The COVID-19 pandemic resulted in substantial disruptions to the criminal justice system, as remote hearings, court closures, and reduced physical capacity have impacted the way cases are progressing through the system from arrest to sentencing to custody.

Timeline: A Look Back at Washington state's COVID-19 Response

Washington's response to the pandemic and its effects is wide-reaching and affected all aspects of the criminal justice system. On Jan. 21, 2020, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) confirmed the first United States case of COVID-19 in Washington. On Feb. 29, 2020, Gov. Jay Inslee proclaimed a State of Emergency for all counties. On March 1, 2020, the Seattle and King County Public Health Department confirmed the first U.S. COVID-19 related death. In the criminal justice system, Washington responded with some of the highlighted actions below:

- On March 23, 2020, Inslee issued Proclamation 20-25 (Stay Home -- Stay Healthy). This directed people to state home barring emergency. According to the proclamation, "All people in Washington state shall immediately cease leaving their home or place of residence except: (1) to conduct or participate in essential activities, and/or (2) for employment in essential business services."
- On April 10, 2020, Inslee issued Proclamation 20-45 (Protection Orders and Personal Service) in response to increased domestic violence incidents. This "directed courts to make use of available technology whenever possible to conduct judicial proceedings and court operations remotely, in order to continue to provide access to justice and to protect the health and safety of the public, court personnel, jurors, litigants, court personnel, and witnesses" and "additional steps to preserve access to our courts, expeditious review and processing, particularly for emergency orders, timely service, and vigorous enforcement of civil protection orders for victims to preserve public safety" and allow those "threatened or are experiencing violence, harassment, stalking, or abuse face" to safely access the courts and obtain protection orders during the pandemic.
- On April 14, 2020, Inslee issued Proclamation 20-47 (Criminal Justice – Limitation of Actions). This "limited court access ordered by the judiciary, directives from public health authorities, and other restrictions enacted in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, make access to Washington courts extremely limited and restrict court operations." Many Washington courts took important steps to ensure people could access justice and essential court services by holding proceedings remotely, suspending many in-building operations, and communicating emergency rules as necessary. Specifically, with respect to civil, criminal, and juvenile matters, all non-emergency trials were suspended (unless trials were already in session, which were held remotely) at the start of the pandemic. This helped prioritize emergency cases (including emergency civil protection order and restraining order matters).
- On April 15, 2020, Inslee signed an order that granted emergency commutations to people who committed nonviolent offenses. Additionally, Proclamation 20-50 (Reducing Prison Population) temporarily waived or suspended requirements associated with confinement sentences and release procedures. This allowed the Washington State Department of Corrections (DOC) to furlough individuals from work release. It also created a Rapid Reentry program to place individuals on electronic monitoring instead of full confinement. As a result, approximately 950 individuals who were incarcerated or assigned to 'work release' were transitioned to community supervision. Correctional departments were challenged to not only protect the health and safety of staff and incarcerated and supervised individuals, but also ensure continuity of facility operations during the pandemic.

- On December 17, 2020, Inslee issued Proclamation 20-80 (DOC – Prison Commitments). This “waived and suspended portions of the transfer statutes”. This helped DOC limit newly committed people from the county jails where they reside before commitment to a state correctional facility.

The Impact of COVID-19 on the Criminal Justice System

On January 30, 2020, the Director-General of the World Health Organization (WHO) declared a public health emergency of international concern, its highest level of alarm, due to the 2019 Novel Coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak. The United States followed the next day with its announcement of a public health emergency in response to the spreading COVID-19 threat. Since then, the pandemic has produced broad county, state, and national impacts that presently continue.

The effects of the pandemic and the government’s response to it have been wide-reaching and have affected all aspects of the criminal justice system. After the stay-at-home orders were announced in the U.S., police reported a reduction in calls and reports for service. Arrests and jail bookings also decreased, and overall crime dropped (Ashby, 2020; Lum et al., 2020; Pietrawska et al., 2020; Shayegh & Malpede, 2020). However, emergency calls for domestic disturbances and violence increased during the stay-at-home orders, including public nuisance complaints. Social distancing and stay-at-home orders kept crime rates statistically low in major cities across the nation. Many law enforcement departments expanded their citations instead of arrest policies or limited arrests. This helped decrease face-to-face interactions with citizens during COVID-19.

The Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) showed that while there was a 30% increase in homicides from 2019 to 2020, homicide rates declined during the first quarter of 2021, with a continued plateau with a decline in the first half of 2022. The Caseload Forecast Council (CFC) and CDC revealed that aggravated assaults and gun assaults reached a peak in the summer of 2020. However, aggravated assaults increased in the first half of 2022 as compared to the first half of 2021 while gun assaults increased slightly from 2020 to 2022.

While drug offense rates were steady since 2017, there was a sharp decline during the beginning of the pandemic. However, in 2021, drug offense rates sharply increased. In the start of summer 202, auto thefts increased. While 2021 presented fewer auto thefts, the first 6 months of 2022 showed another increased rate. Moreover, while there was a significant decrease in robberies and larceny, robberies increased in the first half of 2022 and property crimes decreased from 2020 to 2022. However, it is important to note these findings could be skewed due to the complexities of social discourse during this period.

In response to the pandemic, jails reduced their carceral populations, and some law enforcement agencies reduced low-level arrests and traffic enforcement. The Washington State Institute of Public Policy (WSIPP) revealed several criminal justice measures decreased significantly after the pandemic started. This includes a decrease in fingerprinted arrests and jail bookings. In a previous paper by the SAC, Hernandez and Georgoulas-Sherry (2022) revealed there was a decrease from 2018 to 2019 (3.0%) and 2019 to 2020 (9.3%) in incidents reported from the National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS), a decrease from 2018 to 2019 (0.5%) and 2019 to 2020 (19.1%) in Washington Association of Sheriffs & Police Chiefs (WASPC) arrests, and a decrease from 2018 to 2019 (24.7%) and 2019 to 2020 (12.4%) in WASPC bookings.

Courts, like many other sectors, faced challenges such as closed courthouses, the need for social distancing, a rapid shift to virtual proceedings, and staffing constraints due to illness or quarantine. According to the Court Statistics Project, case filings dropped 28% in 2020. Overall, all caseloads decreased: incoming civil caseloads declined 26%, incoming juvenile caseloads declined 24%, incoming criminal caseloads declined 21%, and incoming domestic relations caseloads declined 20%. However, civil case filings increased for habeas corpus cases (46%) and mental health filings (15%) and increases in criminal case filings were found in felony elder abuse (10%), felony weapon cases (4%), and felony domestic violence (6%) cases. Overall, juvenile delinquency cases decreased by 27% with a larger drop in drug cases (-37%), public order cases (-31%), and person cases (-29%). Some courts shut down and worked to decrease the caseloads once they reopened. This produced fewer criminal prosecutions and — in some instances — a larger focus on diversion programs and other sentencing alternatives (Ashby, 2020). The WSIPP revealed, after the pandemic started, that trends significantly reduced in court case filings, case dispositions, prison admissions, and prison releases.

In U.S. prisons, a study by BJS research found that, from the end of February 2020 to the end of February 2021, “the number of people in the custody of state, federal, or privately operated prisons under state or federal contract decreased more than 16%” and “24 states released a total of 37,700 persons from prison on an expedited basis (earlier than scheduled) during the COVID-19 study period.” In terms of COVID-19 related deaths, the data showed a “crude mortality rate (unadjusted for sex, race or ethnicity, or age) of 1.5 COVID-19-related deaths per 1,000 prisoners from the end of February 2020 to the end of February 2021.” Specific to the US juvenile system, results from the Council of Juvenile Justice Administrators (2022) found that for youth (i.e., children and adolescents under the age of 18), more than half of the jurisdictions reported at least a 20% reduction in secure population, while only 20% of the jurisdictions reported at least a 40% reduction. Furthermore, of states who participated in this study, more than half reported the reduction in population for Black youth was greater than their White youth counterpart. In addition, Washington also acted to release a number of incarcerated individuals who had been convicted of non-violent offenses.

Methods and Data Parameters

From Spring 2020, the COVID-19 pandemic brought disease and significant disruption to the nation; while the impact of COVID-19 pandemic is still not fully known, this report attempts to analyze the COVID-19 impacts on criminal justice data. Under the 2021 SJS grant from BJS, the differences amongst adult and juvenile arrests, adult sentencing and juvenile dispositions, adult and juvenile carceral admissions between 2020 and previous years, to analyze COVID-19 impacts on criminal justice, are evaluated. While 2017, 2018, and 2019 were not impacted by COVID-19, SAC completed year comparisons to assess baseline. This report utilizes publicly available data from a variety of criminal justice agencies as listed below; this study does not intend to generalize any findings. Data parameters include Calendar Years (CY) 2017 to 2021.

- The WASPC collects monthly reported incident-based offense statistics from participating law enforcement agencies. The agencies voluntarily participate as part of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Uniform Crime Reporting program. ‘County annual totals’ include the sum of all reported NIBRS offenses that participating agencies know about within the county and reported to WASPC. NIBRS collects information on 23 different offense categories made up of 47 offenses and allows all reportable offenses within an incident to be reported (Appendix A). The NIBRS incidents included in the analysis were restricted to those that WASPC annually provides on the SAC website.
- The CFC forecasts the entitlement caseloads for Washington and receives Judgment and Sentence (J&S) forms (i.e., sentencing documents) from each county for every felony sentence imposed in Washington State Superior Courts. Each J&S form is entered into the CFC database as a separate record. Felony jail sentences, juvenile dispositions, and prison sentences included in the analysis were restricted to those that CFC annually provides on the SAC website.
- The Administration of the Courts (AOC) maintains a statewide electronic court records database for all cases that courts see in Washington (Superior Court and Courts of Limited Jurisdiction (CLJ)). Superior court filings were included in the analysis were restricted to those that AOC annually provides on the SAC website.
- The DOC maintains information for people incarcerated in state DOC facilities and for people under community supervision in Washington. Prison admissions were included in the analysis were restricted to those that DOC annually provides on the SAC website.

- The Washington State Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) maintains information for people under their jurisdiction housed in state DSHS facilities in Washington. Juvenile admissions were included in the analysis were restricted to those that DSHS annually provides on the SAC website.
- Population estimates from the Washington State Office of Financial Management (OFM) are also used for operationalizations and data parameters. At the time of publication, the Census Bureau had not released all the data that OFM needed to fully update the Small Area Demographic Estimates (SADE) and related products. Instead, OFM used the 2020 Census data released so far to provide preliminary county-level data updates. All other OFM 2011 through 2020 estimates are based on 2010 census data.

Limitations

Several limitations influenced the findings of this report. The data utilized in this project included publicly available administrative data and the lack of detail, or richness, significantly limits any conclusions yielded from this work. No information on the type or severity of offense was provided— this could skew results. While this report is intended to assess the COVID-19 policy changes in the criminal justice system, this report does not reflect the true magnitude.

The data also introduces limitations to this work. The WASPC collects monthly juvenile and adult reported incident-based offense statistics from participating law enforcement agencies. However, these data are based on a “snapshot” of the database because there are no “fixed” statistics since law enforcement agencies can update their incidents as new information becomes available. Additionally, while the WASPC offered arrest data, this data was limited to only NIBRS offenses that were recorded; there are other law enforcement agencies that can arrest, and this data does not reflect a true picture of Washington arrests. The AOC collects monthly Superior Court cases, and the total count of Superior Court case filings decreased from March 2020 to May 2020; note that the court closures associated with the “Stay Home, Stay Healthy” order may have impacted court filing data due to significant court closures. Similar limitations were present in all state administrative data utilized in this endeavor.

Additionally, data is provided as overall state data and then broken down by county; data should not be compared by county due to numerous variables contributing to crime, including but not limited to the demographics, economic, and cultural make-up of the population. More so, not all counties and jurisdictions are contributing members to the criminal justice data utilized in this project, and not all counties and jurisdictions contribute consecutively. This can skew data. Additionally, annual data does not allow for a rich review of complexities within the data – for example, the CDC and BJS data showed increases and decreases in crime rates by season – allowing for a better picture of the COVID-19 impact and seasonality. Additionally, it is possible that some datasets have incomplete or missing records that are not obvious. Finally, there are likely more limitations not listed that could impact the information and conclusions yielded from this work.

Due to policy changes, the current report expects differences in the number of incidents reported, arrests, and bookings between 2020 and previous years. The year 2020 (in addition to pandemic policy changes on the criminal justice system) posed many challenges, such as social unrest, prompting societal temperance and added stressors. Due to these limitations, results should be cautiously interpreted. This endeavor offers a descriptive high-level summary of the impacts of COVID-19 on specific aspects of the adult and juvenile criminal justice system within the state of Washington.

Results

The report’s analyses are descriptive (e.g., generating summaries on means and counts) and non-generalizable in nature, and results are modest in nature. This report utilizes existing measures and publicly available data. The report below utilizes overall Washington state data. Appendix B breaks data down by county.

Population estimates

Table 1 shows the count of the Washington state population by year, by age, and by sex. Regardless of age or sex, the Washington state population showed a steady increase from 2017 to 2021. For age, individuals who were 0 to 11 years old showed a slight increase from 2017 to 2021, from 1.10 to 1.13 million, although 2021 to 2022 presented with a 1.4% decrease. Unlike their younger counterpart, individuals who were 12 to 17 years old showed consistent increases from 546,000 to 577,000 individuals. The second largest age demographic – individuals 18 to 39 – revealed similar trends to their youngest counterpart of 0- to 11-year-old individuals. However, 2017 to 2021 presented consistent increases, and 2022 showed a 5% decrease in individuals who were 18 to 39 years old. Finally, the largest age demographic – individuals 40 and older – showed consistent increases from 3.4 to 3.9 million individuals.

In terms of sex differences, Table 1 showed continued increases for males and females. However, 2020 to 2021 indicated larger increases for the male Washington population when compared to the female Washington population (from 1.9% to 1.0% change).

Adult and juvenile arrests

Table 2 shows the counts of arrests in Washington by year and by NIBRS offense type. For arrests categorized under crimes against society, trend analysis from 2017 to 2019 showed that arrests were increasing from 2017 to 2019, but in 2020, arrests categorized under crimes against society decreased; specifically, arrests categorized under crimes against society decreased from 2019 to 2020 by 15.3% and from 2020 to 2021 48.7%, respectively. However, arrests categorized under crimes against persons and crimes against property showed mixed findings. For arrests categorized under crimes against persons, trend analysis from 2017 to 2019 showed that arrests were decreasing from 2018 to 2020, but in 2021, arrests categorized under crimes against persons increased; specifically, arrests categorized under crimes against persons from 2019 to 2020 decreased by 2.7% and from 2020 to 2021 increased by 4.7%. For arrests categorized under crimes against property, trend analysis from 2017 to 2019 showed that arrests were decreasing, but in 2019, arrests categorized under crimes against property increased; specifically, from 2019 to 2020, arrests categorized under crimes against persons from 2019 to 2020 increased by 16.1% and from 2020 to 2021 decreased by 1.1%. Overall, counts of arrests in overall Washington State, regardless of category, showed overall mixed findings with increases from 2017 to 2018 and then 2019 to 2020; counts of arrests in overall Washington State decreased from 2018 to 2019 and then again 2020 to 2021. From 2020 to 2021, there was an overall 3% decrease in arrests in overall Washington State.

Adult sentencing and juvenile dispositions

Table 5 shows the count of Superior Court filings in Washington by year and by type. There are several differences between the adult and juvenile systems. According to AOC, “criminal and juvenile offender filings are categorized by the primary (i.e., most serious) original charge against the defendant in the following order: homicide, sex crimes, robbery, assault, theft/burglary, motor vehicle theft, controlled substances, other felony, and misdemeanors. Other filing categories include appeals from lower courts and “non-charge” matters” (5). The Superior Court hears proceedings that involve felony criminal, as well as domestic relations, civil disputes, and adoption cases. According to AOC, “because there is no limit on the types of civil and criminal cases heard, Superior Courts are called general jurisdiction courts. Superior courts also have authority to hear cases appealed from courts of limited jurisdiction” (para 1).

Large percent differences from 2019 to 2020 were present in Superior Court filings. While most offenses decreased in rates, homicide court filings increased by 35.4% (from 209 to 283) and robbery court filings increased by 11.7% (from 922 to 1,030). While homicide and robbery court filings decreased from 2020 to 2021, property crime court filings increased by 13.2% (from 6,777 to 7,670) and motor vehicle theft court filings increased by 16.0% (from 595 to 690). Overall, court filings increased by 1.9% from 2017 to 2018. However, court filings showed decreases from 16.2% in 2018-2019, to 21.4% in 2019-2020, to 15.7% in 2020-2021. It is important to note that while courts did experience shutdowns, high level felonies were more likely to be processed through than minor level felonies, and therefore, results can be skewed towards the more serious crimes/felonies.

Table 6 shows the count and average of felony jail sentences in Washington by year and by type. Felony jail sentences showed substantial decreases from 2019 to 2020, although manslaughter felony jail sentences increased by 50.0% (from 4 to 6) and sex crimes felony jail sentences increased by 70.8% (from 212 to 362). From 2020 to 2021, only increases present were for robbery felony jail sentences which rose by 4.6% (from 87 to 91). Overall, felony jail sentences decreased throughout the years, from 2017 to 2021. The average felony jail sentences saw increases for property offenses from 2019 to 2021, while manslaughter and robbery saw declines from 2019 to 2021. It is important to note that while courts did experience shutdowns, high level felonies were more likely to be processed through than minor level felonies, and therefore, results can be skewed towards the more serious crimes/felonies.

Table 7 shows the count and average of prison sentences in Washington by year and by type. Overall, prison sentences, similarly to felony jail sentences, decreased throughout the years from 2017 to 2021. Prison sentences showed substantial decreases from 2019 to 2020, and again from 2020 to 2021. While the overall average prison sentences also saw decreased from 2017 to 2021, in 2019 to 2020, murder, sex crimes, robbery, and drug crimes saw rises. It is important to note that while courts did experience shutdowns, high level felonies were more likely to be processed through than minor level felonies, and therefore, results can be skewed towards the more serious crimes/felonies.

Table 8 shows the count of juvenile dispositions in Washington by year and by type of offense, and the average of juvenile disposition sentencing in days by year and by type of offense.

A juvenile court disposition hearing is a court process where a judge or judicial authority decides the best course of action for a juvenile accused of a crime. After the minor has been apprehended, charged, and found to be delinquent, the hearing is convened (the juvenile equivalent of being guilty in the adult criminal justice system). As stated above, in Washington state, juvenile courts are not distinct constitutional courts; instead, juvenile courts are a statutory division of Washington's Superior Courts. In Washington State, juvenile court is a division of the Superior court, established for justice-involved juvenile individuals under the age of 18 who committed offenses. Like adult justice-involved individuals, juveniles are sentenced according to a standard set of sentencing guidelines. Similar to their adult counterpart, the seriousness of the offenses committed, and the history of the justice-involved individual are integrated into these guidelines; through this, juvenile sentencing guidelines include a range of sentences and sentence conditions. According to AOC, "a juvenile sentence or disposition outside the standard range is possible if the court finds the standard disposition would amount to a "manifest injustice," to the juvenile or to the community; dispositions within the standard range are not appealable; manifest injustice dispositions are" (para. 4).

Juvenile dispositions showed substantial decreases from 2019 to 2020, although arson juvenile dispositions increased by 8.3% (from 481 to 521), obstruction government operations juvenile dispositions increased by 10.4% (from 154 to 170), and weapons law violation juvenile dispositions increased by 10.4% (from 202 to 223). From 2020 to 2021, increases in juvenile dispositions were found in sex crimes which rose by 5.7% (from 193 to 204) and kidnapping/abduction which rose by 37.5% (from 8 to 11). The average days for juvenile dispositions showed increases from 2019 to 2020, for homicide, sex crimes, assault, kidnapping, drug crimes, motor vehicle related crimes, and other property crimes; for 2020 to 2021, increases continued for drug crimes and motor vehicle related crimes – arson, burglary, public disturbance, and obstructing government operations showed percent increases. It is important to note that while courts did experience shutdowns, high level felonies were more likely to be processed through than minor level felonies, and therefore, results can be skewed towards the more serious crimes/felonies.

Discussion

From Spring 2020, the COVID-19 pandemic brought illness and significant disruption to the nation; while the impact of COVID-19 pandemic is still not fully known, this report attempts to analyze the COVID-19 impacts on criminal justice data. All states, including Washington, took a variety of actions to address this impact. In assessing the impact of COVID-19 on criminal justice data, such as adult and juvenile arrests, adult sentencing and juvenile dispositions, adult and juvenile carceral admissions, differences among these metrics between 2020 and previous years were investigated.

The study analyses were descriptive and non-generalizable in nature. While inferences and implications are limiting, and results should be interpreted cautiously, this study provided some interesting trends that continue to mirror previous research endeavors. This paper was an extension of the first paper, Hernandez & Georgoulas-Sherry (2023), where the SAC conducted a study using NIBRS data to assess irregular patterns in reported crime, arrests, and bookings occurring in 2020 as compared to prior years. In this expansion, the SAC extended the analyses by expanding on more administrative criminal justice data to assess how COVID-19 may have shifted the window of criminal justice within the past few years.

Similar to nationwide data, overall, counts of arrests in overall Washington State decreased from 2019 to 2021 – this included both adult and juvenile arrests. Overall, Superior court filings decreased, as did felony jail sentences and prison sentences. Furthermore, in comparison to their adult counterpart, juvenile dispositions showed substantial decreases as well. Lastly, adult prison admissions, saw a 12.6% decline in all admissions (new, re-admit, and other), while for juvenile admissions, from 2019 to 2020, juvenile admissions increased by 11.7% for DOC juvenile admissions and new admissions but from 2020 to 2021, decreases were present with all juvenile admissions.

As these findings are limited to descriptive analyses, further analysis needs to be conducted to evaluate whether these crimes increased or decreased due to the pandemic, or because of other extraneous factors. For example, the year 2020, in addition to the COVID-19 pandemic, posed many challenges, such as social unrest. This prompted societal temperance and added stressors including the murder of George Floyd, the killing of Breonna Taylor, and the Kenosha unrest and shooting.

While there are limitations that impact this work, data continues to show COVID-19 impacts that persist in the criminal justice system in Washington and across the nation. These descriptive (e.g., generating summaries on means and counts) and non-generalizable analyses provide a window to the potential COVID-19 impact found in the Washington's criminal justice system.

Note: First, the WASPC collects monthly reported incident-based offense statistics from participating law enforcement agencies and this data are based on a “snapshot” of the repository database as there are no “fixed” statistics since law enforcement agencies can update their incidents when new information becomes available. Second, while the data is provided as overall state data and then broken down by county, data should not be compared by county as there are numerous variables which contribute to crime in a particular jurisdiction, including but not limited to the demographics, economic, and cultural make-up of the population. Third, not all counties and jurisdictions are contributing members to the NIBRS dataset and not all counties and jurisdictions contribute consecutively which can skew data.
